NSMC NORTH SHORE MEDICAL CENTER

Us is a team.

Like Dr. Ernesto DaSilva and patient, Nancy Marks. Not to mention Salem Hospital, Union Hospital, MassGeneral for Children at North Shore Medical Center, NSMC Heart Center and NSMC Women's Center, Mass General/North Shore Cancer Center, Mass General/North Shore Center for Outpatient Care, and North Shore Physicians Group.

Us is collaborating.

The way we look at it, if you have to see more than one doctor, it's good to know they know each other, talk to one another, and plan your care together.

Us is unstoppable.

The only team on the North Shore performing open-heart surgery. World-class cardiologists – not to mention oncologists, pediatricians, gastroenterologists and other talented specialists. Ingenious, inventive clinicians and researchers who don't know the meaning of the word "can't." And leave you feeling like you can… anything.

Us is in the details.

All of your test results, medications, procedures. All of your information, right there in one electronic medical record system. No matter where you go in the Partners HealthCare network, including Mass General and Brigham and Women's Hospitals.

Us is a hand held.

Someone who understands. Who'll always be there. Because from the first time a woman hears the words "breast cancer," she should never feel alone.

Us is a promise kept.

Making sure that a man who doesn't have a job doesn't have to settle for a second-best cardiologist.

That's the power of Us.

Us is working together

And grammar aside, that makes a whole lot of sense.

Potential nighttime raid at Occupy Boston delayed by ruling

Protesters protected from eviction by temporary court order ◗ Occupiers say they will sleep better ◗ City reps disappointed with judge's decision

NICOLAUS CZARNECKI/METRO

▶ Occupy Boston member Ariel Oshinsky smiles as Judge Francis McIntyre ruled in Occupy Boston's favor in Suffolk Superior Court yesterday.

Protesters at Occupy Boston's encampment can sleep with some relief from the fear of early morning eviction — for now.

Judge Frances McIntyre ruled in Suffolk Superior Court yesterday that Boston officials and police are temporarily restrained from swooping in and clearing out the tents at Dewey Square until a further hearing scheduled on Dec. 1.

"It's a victory for us, it's a victory for the Occupy [movements] as a whole, and it's a victory for the people," said protester Arielle Oshinsky.

A stipulation in the order allows evictions under emergency circumstances such as fires, health issues and "outbreaks of violence."

Oshinsky said this move, while temporary, sets a precedent moving forward.

"It says that bullying free speech into silence is wrong," she said.

City representatives told McIntyre they had "no plans" to evict campers and argued giving protesters advance notice prior to an eviction would endanger police and the public.

Mayor Thomas Menino told the Globe he didn't understand why the group took it to court.

"I think we've been pretty good with [them] and the police department has shown a lot of restraint down there," he said.

The hearing came a day after evictions at the occupation in New York City.

"I definitely feel more safe," said K. Eric Martin, one of four plaintiffs named on the suit, representing Occupy Boston.

Martin said since the raid on Oct. 11, when the occupation tried to expand beyond Dewey Square, leading to hundreds of arrests, the slightest nighttime siren sound startles him.

"Maybe I'll get to sleep more soundly," he said.

New fire chief named

BOSTON. The Boston Fire Department has a new chief.

Steve Abraira, 56, was appointed to the post left vacant by the retirement of Ronald Keating, Fire Commissioner Roderick Fraser announced yesterday.

Abraira is currently the chief in Palm Bay, Fla., and previously served as chief in Dallas. His father and son are also firefighters.

Abraira will assume command Dec. 5.

Keating reached the mandatory retirement age and left last month. METRO

Gift ideas you should and shouldn't give

Groups put out best, worst lists ◐ Online college mag lists best gifts for coeds ◐ Dangerous toys highlighted

With Black Friday less than two weeks away, the lists of what's hot and what's not for this holiday season are being unveiled.

Gift cards and Apple products are among the most wanted gifts for college students, according to Her Campus, an online college magazine for women.

The site, founded by three Harvard students, released yesterday its list of the most "collegiette" friendly gifts.

"The smallest gifts usually make the biggest impact," the site said.

That's why gift cards appear on the list twice.

The site suggests gift cards for essential purchases at stores like CVS and Target. It also suggests gift cards for luxury buys for dorm room decor or spa treatments.

And college students never cringe at seeing a little green in their stockings.

"Cash. It seems tacky and tasteless, but it may mean a night out with friends, a movie date or a week of Spring Break in the long run," the site said.

Also released yesterday was the list of the most dangerous toys.

The World Against Toys Causing Harm put on display at an event at Brighton's Franciscan Hospital for Children. The toys, the organization said, can cause serious harm to children including eye injuries, choking and strangulation.

"There's no excuse for putting profits before safety," said Joan Siff, the organization's director.

'Most wanted' terrorist might be in Massachusetts

The FBI is offering a reward for information leading to the capture of San Diego. Confidential tips can be made by calling 617-742-5533 or 415-553-7400.

- Man is wanted for his alleged role in two San Francisco area bombings
- Vegan man allegedly has ties to animal rights extremist groups

Federal agents are asking for the public's help in locating the man who was the first domestic terrorism suspect added to the FBI's "Most Wanted Terrorist" list.

Daniel Andreas San Diego, 33, might be hiding in Massachusetts, authorities said yesterday.

Specifically he may be in the Northampton area, according to a tip authorities received from the television show "America's Most Wanted."

San Diego should be considered armed and dangerous, authorities said.

▶ San Diego

▶ San Diego mug shot

He is wanted for his alleged role in two bombings in the San Francisco area.

In 2003, two bombs exploded on the campus of a biotechnology corporation. The same year, a bomb strapped with nails exploded at a nutritional products corporation.

An arrest warrant for San Diego was issued in 2003, but he disappeared before he could be arrested.

San Diego has several tattoos and eats neither meat nor any food containing animal products. His affinity for a vegan lifestyle may lead him to use that knowledge as a source of income in the restaurant field, authorities said.

Report: Banks face huge losses

As Occupy ire spreads nationwide, big financial institutions get ready for the blowback 'Bank Transfer Day' urged customers to move their money into more caring organizations — but what does that mean for banks?

ROBYN BECK/AFP/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Protestors march through the downtown Los Angeles financial district on Nov. 5, 2011 — what they called Bank Transfer Day. The event was a national effort to get people to move their money from large corporate banks into smaller banks or credit unions.

The next year might be a particularly bad one for the nation's largest banks if they don't begin to address their customers' needs more proactively.

The 10 largest banks in the U.S. are in danger of losing $185 billion in deposits during the next 12 months as more customers get fed up and choose to bank elsewhere, according to a new report from cg42, a boutique management consulting firm. Much of that will come from the four biggest banks in the country — Bank of America, JPMorgan Chase, Citibank and Wells Fargo — which are projected to lose a combined $135 billion in that time period.

Cg42's predictions are based on surveys conducted earlier this year with more than 5,000 customers from the 10 largest banks and found that 8.7 percent said they were likely to switch banks. The researchers then used data for the total retail deposits in 2010 — just more than $2 trillion — to come up with an estimate for how much these banks collectively stand to lose.

What is unclear though is whether all that lost revenue will go to credit unions and banks other than those listed here, or whether it will simply be redistributed among the 10 biggest as customers switch from one big-name bank to another.

Given the recent wave of consumers switching to credit unions, the big banks certainly have reason to worry that it may be the former. But either way, the data clearly show that the largest banks are in for a turbulent 2012.

Chase runs from check fees

NEW YORK. JPMorgan Chase confirmed that it will squash two additional checking account fees this week.

The bank will end a test program in Oklahoma, where consumers were charged a $10 monthly checking account that couldn't be waived through direct deposits or online banking requirements, a source familiar with the bank plans told MainStreet.

The bank will also call off a $15 monthly checking account fee that could only be waived if a customer maintains a minimum daily balance of at least $1,500, or a combined $5,000 in deposit and investment accounts. This fee was being tested in Atlanta.

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

Wearing a corset? It's a cinch, says Von Teese

Striptease star and corset collector Dita Von Teese visited New York on Tuesday night to unveil Cointreau Travel Essentials, her portable cocktail kit for women on the go. Swizzle-stick thin and flanked by New York's downtown comedy king Murray Hill, she talked to Metro about why the new burlesque scene attracts so many female fans.

"I think it's because they like to see an alternative kind of beauty. I'm not tan, I'm not blonde, I don't look right in a bikini." When we protested, she explained, "Running on the beach in a bikini isn't really my thing. I'm never going to be on the cover of the Sports Illustrated swimsuit issue, let's put it that way."

Dita Von Teese attended the My Cointreau Travel Essentials event at the Forty Four at the Royalton on Tuesday.

ROBIN MARCHANT/FILMMAGIC

With so many women embracing burlesque, does she see the corset making a comeback? "I think what's great is we have the option. We can wear whatever we want, and we can be whoever we want — and if we want to wear a corset, we can wear it our way. There are lots of ways to bring the corset into your life without suffering."

New to burlesque? Dita suggests catching a Dirty Martini show (www.missdirtymartini.com). "She's one of my favorite performers, and one of those women who shows that you can be beautiful at any size."

— With additional reporting by Rebecca Finkel

Who is the sexiest? Bradley Cooper

Bradley Cooper has been named People's Sexiest Man Alive.

Why? Let the fawning magazine count the ways: He went to Georgetown University (preppy!), cooks, is fluent in French, but isn't prissy, 'cause the dude knows how to drive a motorcycle. And, if that's not all, he's close to his mother. "My mother is going to be so happy," he told the magazine when he first found out the news. He also probably thought: "I'm going to get so much more tail because of this. Way to go, self."

Or perhaps he didn't think that? "If you're a single man and you happen to be in this business," he told the magazine, "you're deemed a player. But I don't see myself as a ladies' man." For the interview, Cooper was mum on his current relationships (including the gossip he was/is hooking up with Jennifer Lopez), just saying he describes himself as "single 36-year-old male."

Diaz still uses the words 'booty call'

With Alex Rodriguez apparently out of the picture, Cameron Diaz seems to be rekindling her romance with Sean "Diddy" Combs, according to Us Weekly. Sources say the pair have had an on-again, off-again fling going since Combs first pursued Diaz in 2008. "Since then, when she's single, she'll booty call him," a source says. And now apparently is no different. The pair were recently spotted getting cozy at a dinner in New York, and then this week they turned heads in Los Angeles, where they were "making out, acting romantic" during a lunch in Beverly Hills. Reps for both say the stars are "just friends" and have been meeting to discuss a project.

Gallagher's Katie Holmes run-in

Noel Gallagher is none too pleased with Katie Holmes after the two had a run-in backstage at David Letterman's talk show. The problem? Holmes apparently objected to appearing in video footage being shot of the former Oasis guitarist, Gallagher says on his blog. "We literally bumped into that top Scientologist Katie Holmes on the way into the studio. We came out of the lift and BANG, there she was," Gallagher writes. "Now at this point my mate, and friend of the stars, Scully was doing a bit of filming for my website and managed to capture the moment. ... [Holmes] looked a bit miffed at the various Northwest accents and some vigorous handshaking. ... There was no need to send one of her people over to demand the video be deleted. Un-f—in'-believable."

Talk about awkward

George Clooney's ex-girlfriend and current girlfriend nearly had an awkward run-in, as both Elisabetta Canalis and Stacy Keibler showed up at a big bash at Grauman's Chinese Theater in Hollywood, according to Us Weekly. And while no words were exchanged between the two, the tension was reportedly palpable, as Canalis and Keibler "were always on opposite sides of the room," a party attendee says. "They were basically avoiding each other the whole night."

1: Members of the Rockettes lit up The Empire State Building yesterday in New York City.

2: Brooke Shields and Brad Oscar, currently co-starring in "The Addams Family," co-hosted the 12th annual Make Believe on Broadway gala at the Shubert Theatre on Monday. Proceeds benefit the Only Make Believe foundation, which brings theatrical arts to children undergoing long-term hospital care.

3: At the same event, Andrew Rannells and Josh Gad, both currently starring in "Book of Mormon," took to the stage to perform "You and Me."

4: Blake Lively attended the Museum of Modern Art's fourth annual film benefit, "A Tribute to Pedro Almodovar," in New York City on Tuesday.

5: Mila Kunis attended the Jaguar Land Rover preview reception for the 2011 Los Angeles Auto Show held in Beverly Hills on Tuesday.

6: George Clooney attended the premiere of "The Descendants" at AMPAS Samuel Goldwyn Theater in Beverly Hills on Tuesday. The film will be in theaters this Friday.

7: Tilda Swinton was seen at the "We Need to Talk About Kevin" screening at the Sunshine Landmark in New York City on Tuesday. The drama-thriller will be released next month.

SHOULD I SLEEP WITH HIM ON THE FIRST DATE?

Shrink wrap

Dr. JANE GREER

letters@metro.us

Blake Lively and Ryan Reynolds might be going strong in their relationship — having been spotted enjoying a cozy meal together in Boston this past weekend — but it wasn't too long ago that they had their first date. Even a celebrity has to consider that all pervasive question: Should I sleep with him on the first date? Like anyone at the beginning of a relationship, you have to ask yourself what you want out of the relationship. Will he/she still call in the morning, whatever you decide?

To begin with, you must have a few things in order so you can feel good about yourself the morning after — no matter what happens. Be very clear about your expectations. If you want to have a sexual romp because you're in the mood, haven't had sex in quite a while, find your guy attractive and want to exercise your sexual freedom, then — as long as you are aware that this one night may be all you share together — you can decide to go ahead with an open mind and clear conscience.

It's important for you to think about this before the date so you can take responsibility and practice safe sex. This way you won't wind up feeling pressured or caught off guard, which can lead to taking risks.

GETTY IMAGES

But if this is a guy you'd really like to get to know better and would like to see again, it may be best to hold off on getting sexually involved — many times first-date sex for guys means something entirely different from what it means to women. The guys can have sex and consider it a "great date," but that doesn't necessarily mean that they want to get to know you better. In fact, for some guys the sexual encounter may be enough for them — and then they are ready to move on and meet someone new.

So, unless you are completely comfortable with the fact that you may never hear from the guy again, and that's fine with you, you are probably better off waiting — at least for date No. 2!

Libraries are for the people

RE: "SALVAGED BOOKS ARE UP FOR GRABS": Your coverage of the destruction of the People's Library at Occupy Wall Street overlooked key elements of the story. The library was a fully functional lending library for all ages comprising thousands of books donated by private citizens and corporations to be accessed by any member of the public. Far from being "safely stored," many of the books have been damaged, a large percentage of them are missing or presumed destroyed and the library's laptops are smashed. The destruction of a library is an attack on cultural memory. It is antithetical to our national identity to have a militarized police force tear down a public library in the dark of night.

NBC nepotism stealing jobs

Former President Clinton's daughter Chelsea, like former President George Bush's daughter Jenna Bush, did not obtain her job as an NBC news correspondent by responding to help wanted ads in the New York Times. Surely there are better qualified legitimate reporters with real journalism credentials available to fill these positions. No outcry from the Wall Street protestors how the "1 percent" now are taking jobs away from the other "99 percent!"

Bankers care about one thing

RE: "BOFA: DEBIT CARD FEE WAS BIG ERROR": Mr. Moynihan isn't so concerned with producing a return for shareholders; he is more concerned there won't be enough profit for his bonus. The reason there are "new regulations" is because of banking industry abuse of their customers.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Because you're in tune with the world, don't be surprised by the clout and influence you may find yourself having today. Press for that which could advance your ambitions.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Put on your thinking cap and check all the advertisements, because friends will be looking to you to come up with an event in which to participate.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. The little bits of money you've been squirreling away have finally added up to that whopping sum you need to get something you've been hankering. Go get it.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Being a trifle restless and hard to get along with makes you a perfect candidate to spend some time with active friends who can put you in a happy mood. Don't hesitate to do so today.

'Sexy and I Know It' by LMFAO

Remember how in 2009 it was impossible to go dancing without hearing Black Eyed Peas? Well, 2011 is that type of year for LMFAO with this song, currently No. 4 on the Billboard club charts. Maybe dance floor dominance skips a year? "Sexy and I Know It" is another worthy jam, squeaking and skidding and grooving the same way their earlier singles from 2011 do. Also, how could nobody have ever thought of plugging "sexy" into the childhood chant of "If you're happy and you know it" before?! LMFAO are the right ones to do it. The only shame is that they forgo any sort of breakdown where the people who are sexy and they know it clap their hands. Meanwhile, if you're reading this on the train, and you're sexy and you know it, clap your hands! Now go talk to the other sexy person across the aisle who just clapped her hands.

From your first visit to the website of Firebrand Saints you can tell something's a little different here. It's a clone of a NASA website, with a little button for the menu hidden up in the top corner. Ohhhkaaayy. Inside the newest restaurant in Kendall Square (natch), the interplay of science, art and food continues with beaker-like water glasses, deconstructed video installations of the the TV feed in a rotating collage and sketches of Google map locations projected onto the wall above you while you sit at a grated metal and wooden bar overlooking an open kitchen where hunks of meat rotate on spits. Overall it feels like an impromptu art gallery sprung up inside an industrial lab space. In that regard, as in many of the newer bars over here, it's not the coziest of rooms — it's a little too wide open to feel intimate. But for the dozens of workers in the towering building above, and in the area in general, it will come as a welcome addition for an interesting afterwork can of beer, like San Francisco's 21st Amendment IPA or Colorado's Oskar Blues Mama's Little Yella Pils or a cocktail.

The latter are more direct than you might expect from the chemistry vibe — but in the good sense of the word, usually revolving around three simple ingredients. Number Five is an intriguing blend of mezcal and green chartreuse, two of the hotter ingredients in mixing circles in recent years, and sweet vermouth, although mine would have been better off with a heavier dose of the smokey spirit. People complain sometimes if there's too much mezcal, the bartender explained to me. Those people have bad taste. The Oil Slick — made with the similarly buzzy blackstrap rum, cinnamon syrup and fresh lime — was complexly sweet and spicy, while the effort toward a Whiskey Smash with bourbon, sugar, lemon and mint was pleasantly drier than normal. The best of the lot was a newer cocktail coming into their rotation, The Apple Cinnamon Shrub, made with bourbon, Calvados apple brandy and apples cooked down with a balsamic red wine vinegar, all spice and cinnamon. It had high spice notes on the nose, drank smooth and got us in the mood for seasonal holiday flavors. Sometimes the better formulas require a little bit of art to pull off.

'What the Hell Am I Drinking': Good question, Joe Sixpack

Don Russell likes beer. It's as simple as that. As a founder of Philly Beer Week, he's had a part in putting Philly on the map as a craft brew destination, but we've also known him to enjoy a green Miller Light on St. Patrick's Day.

His latest book wants to make a similarly educated, open-minded beer-lover out of you before the hops snobs ruin your fun. Written under his pen name Joe Sixpack, "What the Hell am I Drinking?" is a collection of 50 essays designed to shed some light on the gigantic draft list now available at your corner bar.

FIND OUT WHAT JOE WILL BE DRINKING ON TURKEY DAY
WWW.METRO.US/GOINGOUT

Do even you wonder what the hell you're drinking?

It's gotten to the point that yes, sometimes. I remember when you just asked for a beer and that was it. It was just beer. I think today, beer drinkers are confronted with thousands of different styles and might not be completely sure what they're ordering.

Is that a good thing?

I think it's a good thing — I'll never complain about more beer. I've thought for some time now that we're living in the best time ever to be drinking beer. Pretty much anyone can find a beer that they'll really enjoy the flavor of.

It's almost as intimidating as ordering wine.

I've described it as the wine-ification of beer. Beer, in many ways, has done things that are very wine-like. A good example is the price of beer. It's inching upward and upward all the time. ... What beer has always done well is that it is the everyman drink — you shouldn't have to worry about how to pronounce it.

Don Russell also goes by Joe Sixpack.

A different type of 'going out' for the weekend

Fall is bursting out all over And there is no better place to embrace it than at the Arnold Arboretum

Check out the Arnold Arboretum in the next month or so for the foliage, then return in the spring and summer to see hundreds of blooming lilac bushes, roses and blossoming trees.

NORA DUNNE/METRO

Sure, Bostonians can see fantastic fall foliage all over town — lining the Charles River Esplanade, on picturesque South End streets and all over the Fens, Boston Common and the Public Garden.

Still, the Arnold Arboretum is worth a trek to the end of the Orange line. The 265-acre botanical garden is a peaceful respite from the bustling city — and yes, it's bursting with fiery, golden leaves. It's also free.

Visitors to this oldest arboretum in North America can take guided walking tours of the grounds on Saturdays, Sundays and Wednesdays through mid-November, or explore on their own dawn to dusk any day of the year.

If you go

Arnold Arboretum
125 Arborway, Boston
Free, 617-524-1718
www.arboretum.harvard.edu

Although there are labeled walkways throughout the park, tour guides encourage visitors to go off the beaten path and explore.

The Arboretum has almost 4,000 plant species from all over the world. All of them are labeled — by name and year planted — with a tag. Every tree, shrub, vine and flower has been purposely cultivated on the land, because none of them were there before the Arboretum's birth 140 years ago. The area had been a farm.

The Arnold Arboretum is part of the Emerald Necklace, Boston's parks network, but Harvard University maintains and runs it.

5 Reasons to go to the movies this weekend

Must-see

ANDREW COOPER

▶ Robert Pattinson and Kristen Stewart finally consummate their eternal burning love in "The Twilight Saga: Breaking Dawn - Part 1."

1 'The Twilight Saga: Breaking Dawn - Part 1' All eyes are on Mr. and Mrs. Cullen this weekend, as mortal Bella and vampire Edward tie the knot and, you know, "break a headboard" — the new euphemism for Twihards everywhere.

2 'Happy Feet 2' The dancing penguins are back with an impressive list of celebrities giving voice to them. This time, the feisty feathered folk try to stave off a threat to their home.

3 'The Descendants' George Clooney is a Hawaiian land baron coping with his wife's comatose state after a water-skiing accident. As he takes on the parental duties, he also finds out shocking details of his wife's secret life without him.

4 'Immortals' Tarsem Singh, director of "The Cell" and one of the two new Snow White remakes, has a fun box office hit on his hands with this tale of a man (Henry Cavill) chosen by Zeus to fight against King Hyperion and his quest to find the ultimate weapon of mass destruction.

5 'J. Edgar' Though Clint Eastwood's latest effort may not shine like some of his previous films, this biopic about the first head of the FBI is fascinating, if only for the way they made Leo DiCaprio look fat and decrepit. METRO

Goth rock icon on where he finds his muse
And no, he doesn't dwell in a cave somewhere

Murphy's awe

The titles of Peter Murphy's two musical offerings of this year are telling of the singer's contrasting expressions, the abstract and the concrete. He titled his full length album, "Ninth," as it is his ninth solo effort without Bauhaus, one of the first gothic rock groups of the 1970s. Straight-forward enough. His more recent EP, however, "The Secret Bees of Ninth" is more esoteric in title and approach. The word, "secret" crops up in Murphy's work a lot. This, he says, is with good reason.

"There's always with my work, the unseen oblique undercurrent of, I think you'd call it spirituality," he says in a voice a few shades darker than his usual deep velvety croak, as he is recovering from bronchitis.

"I like to put out words or statements that somehow evoke the idea instead of laying it out with actual words, it's a more poetic thing in that sense," he says. "I try to communicate what the muses were, the inspirations and ideas going around my head."

As he considers, he steers his sentiment more towards the concrete.

"It is quite a process but I don't want people to think it's an intellectual sort or purposefully mysterious thing or approach," he says. "I don't have poetry books or a cave anywhere."

Spit ye rosebuds while ye may

"I Spit Roses" is one of the strongest songs on "Ninth." Its title comes from an incident that has been widely cited as the breaking point for Bauhaus when the band reunited a few years ago. Instead of continuing an argument, Murphy gathered a nearby bouquet and, well, consider the title. Have his ex-bandmates reacted?

"No, the reaction happened when they were spat upon," Murphy laughs. "They know what happened. They were there. They didn't have to react."

CINDY FREY

▶ Kelliher of Mastodon is on the far right with the belt buckle that says his name. Inset, the "mythology and dinosaurs and big creatures" he talks about are all in one on the cover.

RECIPE FOR METAL

When Mastodon combine mythology, big creatures, dinosaurs and intricate album artwork, it's a perfect concoction ◐ 'We're all still like kids,' says guitarist and singer

If there's one thing about heavy metal that's often overlooked, it's that the music is as theatrically intense as it is sonically relentless. Take Mastodon, who returned this fall with "The Hunter" — a proper follow-up to the Atlanta metalheads' critically acclaimed "Crack the Skye." Not only does "The Hunter" include a download code for a nifty 3-D, interactive "Augmented Reality Experience" to play with, but the intricate cover also captures Mastodon's rich, mythology-themed music.

On the 'Hunt'

Artwork aside, it's the music that galvanized critics to high praise when "The Hunter" emerged.

"We're doing the best we can," says Kelliher. "We had a month before we left for a European tour. I didn't think we were ready to go into the studio, but lo and behold, all of a sudden we had this amazing f—ing record. It was an outpouring of creativity."

"You have to make a good representation of what's on the inside on the outside," co-guitarist and singer Bill Kelliher says. "We're all fans of mythology and dinosaurs and big creatures — the unknown and weird things. All the things that 14-year-old boys are interested in."

Kelliher pauses, realizing that he just equated Mastodon with juveniles. He laughs: "We're all still like kids in that way."

As an actual kid growing up in Rochester, N.Y., Kelliher would browse record stores — and more often than not, it was an album cover that got him hooked before the music.

"I'd pick up the Agnostic Front records, or Iron Maiden's, and think, 'Wow, this must be awesome,'" he recalls. "You look at Slayer's 'Reign In Blood' and think, 'Wow, this is sick!'"

Indeed, we do.

"That's what drew me in to listening to Iron Maiden or Slayer. It piques your curiosity. If there's a dumb photo of the band on the cover you think, 'What is this crap?' That's not interesting to me."

▶ Brady tore his ACL the last time he played the Chiefs.

Pats recollect bad memories

◗ Face Chiefs for first time since Brady injured his ACL in 2008 ◗ Different squad features a familiar face

It's been a while since the Patriots and Chiefs faced one another — and it doesn't bring back good memories.

Yup, the 2008 season opener at Gillette. The same game that Chiefs safety Bernard Pollard lunged at Tom Brady's knee, tearing his ACL, ending his season and putting the Patriots season to bed before the first quarter of the first game even ended.

Pollard is gone, as are a lot of players on both sides from that game.

"A lot of new faces, of course new coaches, quite a few new players from the last time we played them," Bill Belichick said. "So we're really starting from scratch. Impressive team. I think some of the things I've been impressed with are their overall toughness.

"I think they're a hard-nosed football team that's tough. They've got some receivers, and some big physical guys that really like to take it to the defense."

Romeo Crennel was Patriots defensive coordinator for 64 games from 2001-2004 and was part of all three Super Bowl wins.

One very familiar face is that of Romeo Crennel, now defensive coordinator of the Chiefs and formerly of the Patriots. The Chiefs play a similar defensive scheme as the Pats, so both sides know what they're getting into.

"Defensively they're very well coached," Tom Brady said. "We've been around Romeo for a long time, so we have a decent understanding of what he does but we haven't played these guys in a while."

QUARTERBACK CARNAGE

Fantasy sports

ADAM LEVITAN
ALEVITAN@METRO.US

Wide receivers are the toddlers of the fantasy world. They can't do anything for themselves and like to complain a lot.

So after a week that saw a fistful of quarterbacks go down with injuries, there's reason for concern. After all, a wideout is worthless if his quarterback can't get him the ball. Should we be selling?

Bad for Bowe

With Matt Cassel done for the year, the Chiefs are turning to Tyler Palko. Yikes. Palko is a former undrafted free agent, possesses a weak arm and has poor size. These are all major red flags for an offense that was already skewed toward the run. Sell Dwayne Bowe while you can as his talent can't overcome this.

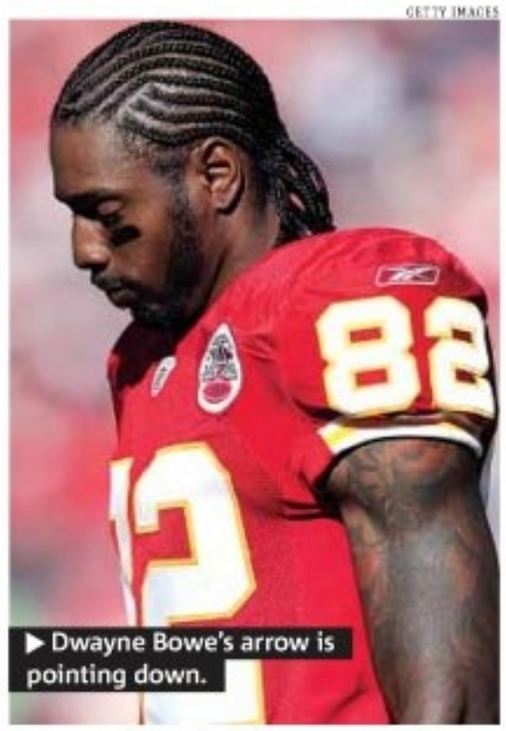
Trojan horse

Before we write off Matt Leinart, let's remember his credentials coming out of college. He's got a big arm and he's willing to use it. Considering Andre Johnson is perhaps the best all-around receiver in the league, he'll sustain high-end WR2 value.

Vinsanity

If Vince Young ends up starting in place of Michael Vick, look for lots of rollouts and short passes underneath. Give Brent Celek a boost, but don't expect DeSean Jackson to finally break out. Young figures to play it conservative.

GETTY IMAGES



▶ Dwayne Bowe's arrow is pointing down.

NFL news

Murray's job

▶ DeMarco Murray has earned the starting job and he'll keep it. Even though Felix Jones (ankle) is nearly healthy, the Cowboys have confirmed Murray will remain the workhorse. The rookie will sustain RB1 value the rest of the way.

Denarius Moore

▶ WR, Raiders
Freakish talent, a full-time starting role and a quarterback not afraid to chuck it deep. Moore is for real.

Lance Ball

▶ RB, Broncos
Knowshon Moreno (knee) is done for the year and the Broncos run the ball 800 times per game.

Vince Young

Michael Vick is shaky for this week and won't push it once the Eagles are mathematically eliminated. Young runs.

NFL targets

The hierarchy at wideout is always changing. These three are suddenly very reliable WR2/3 bets:

1 Antonio Brown, WR, PIT — Hines Ward has been demoted, locking Brown into most two-wide sets. He's an elite playmaker.

2 Brandon Lloyd, WR, STL — With Tim Tebow, Lloyd would have been a bust. With Sam Bradford/Josh McDaniels, he's a beast.

3 Victor Cruz, WR, NYG — Playing out of the slot, Cruz has become Eli Manning's favorite target in key situations.

Maddon is AL's top skipper

Joe Maddon was an easy pick for AL Manager of the Year honors.

The Rays skipper garnered 26 first-place votes to beat out Jim Leyland and Ron Washington. Maddon helped Tampa Bay overcome a nine-game deficit to beat out the Red Sox for the wild-card spot.

Arizona's Kirk Gibson took home Manger of the Year honors in the National League. METRO

Former Sox skipper sitting season out

Francona takes name out of running for Cubs job Tito won't manage in 2012, but may pursue broadcasting career Shows support for Sveum

Terry Francona has reportedly taken his name out of the running for the vacant manager's seat in the Chicago Cubs' dugout.

In fact, the former Red Sox skipper told CSNNE.com that he doesn't plan to manage anywhere in 2012.

"I need to take a step back and re-energize," Francona told the website. "That's probably in my best interest right now. In fairness to myself, it's the best thing to do."

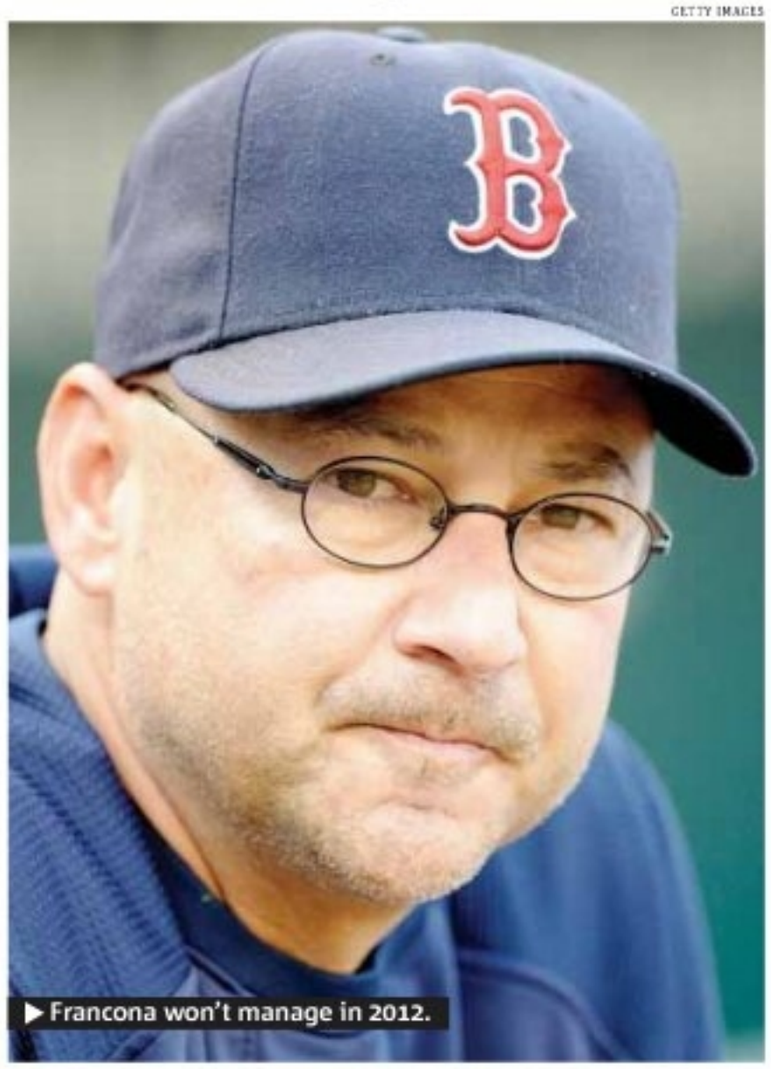
Last week, Francona interviewed with the St. Louis Cardinals, but they ultimately hired Mike Matheny. Francona was being touted as a good fit for the Cubs due to his ties with Cubs President of Baseball Operations — and former Sox GM — Theo Epstein.

"We both know each other well enough where we can be honest with each other," Francona said. "I don't think it's the right opportunity."

Francona, who took a lot of blame for Boston's epic September meltdown, has been in talks with FOX, ESPN and MLB Network to do some broadcast work next season.

"It may be a way to stay in the game, enjoy it and also be able to step back and look at things," he said. METRO

GETTY IMAGES



Francona won't manage in 2012.

No. 1 fan

Francona gave a ringing endorsement for Dale Sveum, who is a finalist for the Sox's vacant manager's job. Sveum was on Francona's staff when the Sox won the Series in 2004.

"Players love him and they should," Francona told ESPN 1000 in Chicago. "I played with him actually in Milwaukee. He's kind of a players' player. He does things right. He's solid."

News in brief

'Nice lunch' for Sox, Sveum

Red Sox brass met with Dale Sveum yesterday at the GM meetings in Milwaukee for more than two hours.

Sveum is emerging as a strong candidate to be the club's next manager. "We had a nice lunch," Sox owner Tom Werner told The Globe.

Sveum, a hitting coach for the Brewers, is reportedly scheduled for a second interview with the Chicago Cubs. METRO

NORTH SHORE MEDICAL CENTER

Healing takes time.
It takes expertise and innovation.
Very smart, talented people working together to get him back on his feet again. And one who undertands, what it means to always be there.

That's the power of Us.
